

Dr Nicola Johnson is a lecturer in curriculum and teacher education in the Faculty of Education, University of Wollongong, New South Wales, Australia. She has been an independent member of NZFGW since 2003. She has recently won the Outstanding Contribution to Teaching and Learning Early Career Award, University of Wollongong, 2009. Her first book was published earlier this year - Johnson, N. F. (2009). The Multiplicities of Internet Addiction: The Misrecognition of Leisure and Learning. Surrey, UK: Ashgate. Nicola's research focuses on young people and their technological expertise, specifically in the project, 'The Teenage Expertise Network'. For more information, go to www.nicolajohnson.net

Dr. Nicola F. Johnson
PhD (Deakin), MEd, BEd, Dip Tchg (Primary) Educator (Lecturer) in Curriculum and Teacher Education Faculty of Education, 23.G15 University of Wollongong.